INDIANA VOTE FORMS BASIS FOR ARGUMENTS

Anti-Hoover Forces Receive Big Impetus in Spite of His Good Showing

TURNED DOWN, CLAIM

On Other Hand Secretary's Friends Stimulated to Harder Efforts in Drive

Washington—Indiana's primary is today as it probably will be till convention time, the basis for more arguing and analyzing than anything else in the pre-convention race in the Republican party.

Notwithstanding the fact that Herbert Hoover made an excellent showing against the regular Republican organization, the fact remains that the anti-Hoover forces have received their biggest single impetus since they started their drive against the secretary of commerce. They are taking advantage of the basic fact that the Republican voters of a pivotal state turned down the secretary. Beyond this they feel they need not go because in politics nothing is more difficult to explain than a defeat, especially in a presidential preference primary.

But while the Indiana primary has stirred up the opposition it has, on the other hand, stimulated the Hoover forces and they realize that all is not plain sailing, as it appeared to be before the Indiana primary. Had they announced in advance that they did not expect to win and would be content with running some 20,000 votes behind Watson, their case would have rested on a different basis today. But it was cast and the whole Hoover campaign has been centered in fighting organizations that did not give the secretary an even break.

In an effort to get the independent voters where Secretary Hoover was nominated, the fact that he made such a remarkable fight against the Indiana organization might be very helpful. As a means of satisfying the practical politicians, however, it is not a fact that Secretary Hoover won in Baltimore against the regular organizations of his party in 1912.

HOOVER NOT STOPPED

It is an exaggeration to say that Secretary Hoover has been "stopped" by the Indiana primary, as Woodrow Wilson has not been stopped by the Indiana primary. It is doubtful whether the favorite son votes will be held together very long in the convention. On the other hand, some of the uninstructed delegation, should be prejudiced against the secretary by what happened in Indiana. The chances are a deadlock would ensue.

In all this, however, the attitude of President Coolidge is bound to be significant. Indiana, if elected, turned down his administration's policies, like the vote of the McGovern plan. Senator Watson took the opposite side from Mr. Coolidge on the world court. Will Mr. Coolidge permit the convention to be deadlocked or will he at the proper moment, indicate his desire for a candidate who upholds his policies? Something from the president may turn the tide toward the secretary of commerce, and the Hoover men are counting on it as the trump card in June.

UTILITY CONVENTION

DIFFERS FROM OTHERS

Madison—(AP)—A convention which "convenes" but does not meet is being held by the Wisconsin Utilities Association, composed of public utility companies of the state.

The association has held no state-wide meeting for three years, but John St. John, Madison, its president, is submitting his annual report to the members as he would if they met in convention.

Members of the association are planning to spend approximately $25,000.00 for the construction of new plants, new service facilities, buses, trolleys, tracks and general improvements, the presidential report says.

Although the association has held no state-wide meeting, its sectional conventions have carried on their work. During the past year six sectional meetings were held at Green Bay, Madison and Milwaukee.

The association includes in its membership 35 companies, 581 active personal members, and 113 associate member companies.

CHAMP HAGEN

HAGEN WINNER OF BRITISH OPEN TOURNEY

Scores 72's on Final Two Rounds to Lead Stellar Field with 292 Strokes

Sandwich, England—(AP)—Walter Hagen won the British Open golf championship Friday with a score of 72 on the final round and a total score of 294 establishing in the position of runner-up to Hagen.

Archie Compston took 73 on his final round for a total of 295, three strokes back of Hagen's mark. Hagen finished with a score of 73 for his last round and a total score of 294 establishing in the position of runner-up to Hagen.

Hagen finished as 4,000 excited golf fans surged about him getting thrill after thrill from his play. At the 15th, perhaps the most critical hole in the championship, "The Hail" made a masterful shot from a big bunker facing the green, which caught his tee shot. At the 16th he holed a 12-footer for a par 3 and then with the Prince of Wales looking on, he sent his iron second whizzing to the 17th green, hole high and only four feet from the cup. He missed the putt, but he played the home hole carefully and took his par four.

Hagen played great golf in the final 36 holes, coming out of trouble with deadly accuracy and putting well on the whole, although he missed a short putt at the 19th hole which would have lapped another stroke from his card.

Hagen has won the open championship of the United States twice and the American P. G. A. championship five times, the last four years in succession.

Percy Allis, a British golfer, finished fourth with a score of 298. Jim Barnes and Jose Jurado, Buenos Aires, tied for fifth place with scores of 301. Bill Melhorn, followed at 302.

15-year-old Youth First Winner as Airmen Land Several Miles from Port

Chicago—(AP)—Die Zwei Fleigende Deutschen and Irishman Fitzmaurice were shaken out of the clouds of heavy dusk into the din of many thousands "Hoehs" and "Begorras" at the municipal airport Thursday night.

"Just three big men!" exclaimed Mayor Thompson as the monolithic Baron von Huenefeld, an elite carrier dropping from lips, the grinning Captain Koch and the mustached and uniformed Major Fitzmaurice climbed from the Junkers F-13 after a delayed hop from Cleveland.

No lonely, teelocked Greenly Island this. Instead of the lighthouse which told the sky adventurers they had finished the first East-West Atlantic flight, there was a top-of-the-world landing field, with 5,000 excited welcomers crowding forward against 1,000 policemen for a closeup look at the famous trio.

Yet these thousands, including the mayor, the official welcomers and city dignitaries, were not the first to smile Chicago's greeting to the Bremen flyers. The actual, though unofficial, welcomer was 15-year-old John Collins, who met the airmen several miles from the airport.

John was eating dinner when he heard the airmen's plane.

"It's the fliers!" he yelled, jumping up. "They're lost!"

Without stopping even for a collar or coat, John ran to the family flier and whipped it over the road to the nearby checker-board field, arriving just as the F-13 rolled to a standstill.

"Hey, ain't you lost?" he shouted as the three men swung cramped legs out of the plane and looked about, puzzled, at the deserted field.

"Follow the railroad tracks to municipal field," went on the breathless Turn to page 4, col. 6

Hughes Celebrates Return To Duties With Ultimatums

Chicago—(AP)—Commissioner of Police Hughes has decreed a curfew on the city's night life at 1 o'clock in the morning.

Since his return Wednesday from a vacation in Missouri, "Go-Get-'Em Mike" Hughes has issued ultimatums and orders with gnatlike gun rapidity. His first was to clean up gambling and his condition then followed instructions to clamp the lid on tight at 1 o'clock.

Unless his orders were obeyed, he told deputy commissioners, they would face charges before the police trial board.

His specific orders were: "Enforce the 1 a. m. closing law for poolrooms and soft drink parlors. 'Halt all rumrunning vehicles and turn liquor and prisoners over to the government authorities."

"Jail all racketeers on sight and keep jailing them as frequently as they are released."

"Stop all open gambling."

"Those are your instructions," said the commissioner, "and they can't be misunderstood."

He told subordinates the results of the recent primary election indicated that the voters wanted reform. "We'll give them reform," he said. "Close every thing. Make a house to house canvass in the hunt for beer flats. Watch for slot machines and any other form of gambling. We are going to make this town so tight it squeaks."

"If you find disorderly houses and gambling houses also were ordered closed permanently."

Madison—(AP)—Attorney William F. Hannan, for the State Teachers Association, is in the list of the constitutionality of loans to the University of Wisconsin building corporation, suggested in his brief before the state supreme court that another special session of the legislature may be required to straighten out university appropriation matters.

The Teachers' Association, through Guy J. Loomis, one of its members, is asking the state's high court to settle the constitutionality of the law under which the building corporation may borrow from the teacher's retirement fund. Money so borrowed would be used for the erection of university buildings.

The brief says that if it is true that "any or all of our contentions are sound, the regents may be seriously embarrassed in carrying out their fiscal policies. We suggest, however, that such embarrassment may be relieved by a special session of the legislature called to correct mistakes in previous legislation. We submit a continuing violation of plain constitutional mandates."

In the governor's office it was said that no intimation of the need of a special session had been received and that any action looking toward one could be made by mail so that no court making one necessary.

It was pointed out there that the special session is only mentioned as a possible relief in one of the arguments of one of the attorneys—that no official attention has been called to the matter.

Shore-to-ship Service

New York—(AP)—The first landing of an airship on the deck of a moving steamer, accomplished off Ambrose lightship, was hailed by shipping men Friday as demonstrating the feasibility of a shore-to-ship service to speed trans-Atlantic travel.

The army non-rigid dirigible TC-5 effected the landing Thursday on a specially-constructed platform on the United States ship, heard first by an American trader while the ship proceeded on its way to Plymouth and London at a speed of six knots an hour.

The dirigible remained on the steamer's deck three minutes, while letters were delivered and a passenger picked up, and then cast off again and returned to her hangar at Lakehurst, N. J. The test was conducted by the army and the shipping board.

The platform on which the TC-5 landed was 20 feet wide and 30 feet long. The dirigible's gondola, 10 feet long, thus allowing only 10 feet leeway on each end for the landing. A ventilator and the flagstaff on the tall mast had been unshipped giving the big deck space of 70 feet. Her nose projected forward between the liner's gangways, and her stern swung high in the air.

STATES DIFFER ON

FORESTRY PROBLEM

Minnesota Lumber Men

Fighting for Lower Tax

Rate and No Reforestation

Madison—(AP)—Eugene Weigert, Milwaukee, member of the state conservation commission, told the Minnesota Reforestation Commission when it met with the Wisconsin legislature's interim forest committee that the Wisconsin forest crop law had brought 100,000 acres of timber lands under its tax-protective wing almost under a state of no reforestation plan.

The Minnesota delegates were not so enthusiastic about their state's forest crop law, reporting that instead of developing a "forest-mindedness" as Mr. Weigert said the Wisconsin law was doing, the lumber interest in the Copper state are complaining and asking a lower tax rate on the lands. The Minnesota tax rate per acre is eight cents plus three cents for fire protection. Wisconsin's is flat ten cents per acre.

Lieut. Gov. W. I. Nolan, head of the delegation, said Minnesota has no state nurseries, no reforestation plan in the 400,000 acres of state forest and the only reforestation going on is in the 1,000,000 acres of national forests there.

Mr. Weigert told the visitors that success of the forest crop law depended on establishment of profit in forests to private capital. "Capital is not known to follow philanthropic lines," he said. "Lands are not capable of reforestation by private capital unless industries which make it a part of their business to carry it out. If private capital cannot be interested in reforestation it is up to the municipal unit and the state to carry it out, but I doubt whether this will be desirable, because politics would generally enter."

AMERICAN KILLED

Shanghai—(AP)—Mrs. William T. Hobart of the American Methodist mission, who has been in Shanghai since 1912, was killed on April 29 by a bullet fired through a small window in her bedroom from an opposite wall during fighting between the Nationalists and Northerners.

New York—(AP)—The Methodist Episcopal church board of foreign missions Friday received a cablegram announcing the death of Mrs. William T. Hobart, who has been in Shanghai since 1912. She was 68 years old.

Mrs. Hobart, who was 68 years old, was born at Flushing, Long Island. She and her husband have been missionaries in China since 1912. Both were graduates of Northwestern university. They have four children. Two sons reside at Evanston, Ill. and two daughters are in the missionary service of the church in foreign fields.

APPEAL TO LEAGUE

Geneva—(AP)—The Nanking Nationalist government Friday appealed to the League of Nations against the Japanese who have driven the Chinese Nationalists out of Tsinan.

The League secretary received communication from the foreign minister of the Nanking government asking the intervention of the League of Nations under paragraph two article eleven of the covenant. It also requested that a special meeting of the league council be convoked to investigate the Japanese expeditionary movement into Shantung.

Paragraph two of article eleven of the league covenant reads: "It is declared to be the friendly right of each member of the league to bring to the attention of the assembly or of the council any circumstances whatever affecting international relations which threaten to disturb international peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends."

ATTEMPTS TO REGAIN STOLEN PUBLIC LAND HAVE PROVEN USELESS

Presidents Cleveland and Roosevelt Did the Most Effective Work

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth of a series of six articles telling how America's 1,600,000,000 acres of public lands has dwindled. Tomorrow: The Oil Cases.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington. Sporadic attempts have been made to recover vast areas of public lands obtained by crooked methods and to prevent further looting of the public domain. Presidents Cleveland and Roosevelt did most effective work, and since the Taft administration there have been no major land scandals except the Secretary Fall cases and the events of 1920, now leading to an investigation of the Salt Creek oil leases in Wyoming.

As a conservation measure, Cleveland withdrew from entry large timber tracts in the northwest. He recovered millions of acres from the looters and the Democratic platform of 1888 braved, probably with exaggeration, that he had "reclaimed from corporations and syndicates, alien and domestic, and restored to the people nearly 100,000,000 acres of valuable lands, to be sacredly built as homesteads for our citizens."

Meanwhile, the conservationist cause was growing stronger and in 1887 the first real conservation measure was achieved with the establishment of a division of forestry in the Department of Agriculture. In 1888 an irrigation division was set up under the secretary of the interior, who was given power to withdraw reservoir and irrigation sites from private entry.

Congress also granted funds for surveys of arid western lands which since have revealed that most of the ploverlands on the great plains had passed into "private ownership," largely speculative. Subsequent congresses often hampered these ventures, but they continued to wax in importance. Then in 1897, Gifford Pinchot was made chief forester and for 13 years led the National Conservation fight which gave him fame. In 1902 Senator Francis G. Newlands of Nevada at last put through his famous Reclamation Act, by which money derived from public lands was to be used for recovery of arid tracts for the benefit of home seekers.

In 1907 Roosevelt called a conference of governors to consider the best means of guarding and preserving the natural resources. All the important officials in Washington were summoned to it—and as many scientists as were within call. The result was the National Conservation Commission, composed of politicians, scientists and industrial leaders, which later recommended that remaining public lands be classified by mineral content and disposed of more intelligently. Congress provided opposition to the commission, even refusing Roosevelt's request for $25,000 for its expenses. Threat of the public lands continued, but not so openly—and strong means were being taken to check it. In Roosevelt's administration, 234,000,000 acres of forest land, coal lands, phosphate lands and water power sites were withdrawn, most of this to become the nation's permanent property.

Taft, however, appointed Richard

NO FANCY LIGHTS FOR CITY PARKS THIS YEAR

Lack of funds has forced the Appleton park board to abandon plans for an elaborate permanent lighting system in Pierce park. The board felt it would be able to install the lights this spring, and had a lighting engineer here to look over the grounds. The board now is planning temporary lights in places most needed.

A. Ballinger secretary of the interior. The latter soon was in a bitter fight with the conservationists, who charged that he was wrecking the forest and reclamation services. Within a month he had restored 3,000,000 acres to entry, but the protest of Pinchot and his friends was so deafening that Taft withdrew them again.

Ballinger became the central figure of the big scandal in Taft's administration when Pinchot charged, among other things, that Ballinger was misusing his office to protect fraudulent by-claimed Alaskan coal lands. Progressive Republicans united with Democrats to force a joint congressional investigation.

The Aldrich machine, which then controlled the Senate, barely kept control of the committee and Ballinger gained a majority exoneration and a letter of endorsement from Taft. But the minority report was so bitter, based on a variety of sensational evidence against him, that Ballinger resigned.

Louis D. Brandeis, now supreme court justice, and ex-Senator Popper of Pennsylvania were strong allies of Pinchot in the Ballinger fight, delivering scathing indictments of the secretary. Taft, however, withdrew government oil lands from entry in 1910. The Alaskan coal lands are still public property, powerful interests which had laid hold of them having been driven out by Congress on demand of the conservationists. Some 375,000,000 acres of public lands are in Alaska.

Another important conservation step was taken when the 55th Congress passed the Federal Water Power Act, which disposes of power sites by lease rather than grant. In 1918 the government also recovered from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 worth of timber from the Oregon and California Railroad Company, which had sold restricted land to timber syndicates.

The law providing for oil and leases was passed in 1920, with provision for preference for those who had continued to take oil from Salt Creek despite Taft's order. Charges of fraud were then made against these oil men and have been recurrent, but whether the leases were finally approved under the Wilson or Harding administration is not yet clear.

On the whole, the conservation cause considered itself well entrenched just before Albert B. Fall became secretary of the interior in 1921.

MUCH WORK AHEAD BEFORE MUNY GOLF COURSE IS READY

Won't Be Open for Play Until Both Fairways and Greens Are Ready

Seeding of the fairways and greens at the municipal golf course will be started next week. Employees of the Chicago landscape company laying out the grounds have been working for the last three weeks or more and have made considerable headway. There now are about 25 men working on the grounds with two tractors and five teams of horses. They have been grubbing out the underbrush, filling up holes and disking and raking fairways.

The argument about running a water extension to the park finally has been cleared up and if the water commission does not change its mind there is nothing to prevent use of the grounds early in July.

The new golf grounds will not open until both fairways and greens are ready for play, it is said. As a matter of fact it is expected the greens probably will be ready for use even before the fairways. The German creeping bent which is being planted on the greens is one of the fastest growing grasses known.

IKE WALTONS ON LIST FOR PHEASANT EGGS

About 500 pheasant eggs were to be shipped Friday from the pheasant hatcheries in Milwaukee to the local chapter of Isaac Walton leaguers, according to Richard Sykes, president of the local chapter. LAWRENCE STUDENTS GET SCHOLARSHIPS

Four of Them Have Been Selected for Study at Other Institutions

Numerous scholarships have been granted recently to students of Lawrence college. Miss Jeannette Jones, Menasha, a senior has been granted an assistantship in geology at North western University, where she will study for her Master of Arts degree. William Verhage, Sheboygan, also a senior, was granted a $500 scholarship at Oberlin University. He will ship at Berlin University. He will study for his Master of Arts degree in history.

Robert Rugh, instructor in zoology at Lawrence, has been granted a $1500 teaching fellowship at Columbia University. The fellowship will allow for graduate study at the university for the year 1928-9 toward Mr. Rugh's degree as Doctor of Philosophy. Mr. Rugh taught at Oberlin before he came here.

Carl Swartzlow, who graduated from Lawrence in 1924 and has been teaching natural science at Wisconsin Rapids High School, has been granted a teaching fellowship in geology at the University of Missouri.

"NEAR" PRODUCTS MUST BE LABELED PROPERLY

Madison—C. J. Kremer, state food and dairy commissioner, is continuing his fight to force manufacturers of "near" jams, jellies and preserves to label their products properly. Pectin, a by product of fruits, has been used in recent years as a jelly. When sugar or glucose and water solutions are made to the consistency of jelly with the use of Pectin and artificial flavor and color are added, the product appears like jelly. It is not, however, jelly as defined by law and made in homes, Mr. Kremer says. He holds that combinations consisting essentially of glucose, sugar, water and pectin, artificially colored, in imitation of genuine jelly cannot be legally sold in Wisconsin because they are inherently fraudulent. He insists that the product contains more than 25 per cent water and that labels on the containers should declare water to be one of the principal constituents.

BUILDING ADDITION TO VALLEY BOY SCOUT CAMP

M. G. Clark, valley scout executive is spending the week with carpenters and masons building additions and making repairs on Boy Scout buildings located at the Fox river valley scout camp at Lake Winnebago, about a mile east of Neshanic Beach. A large porch is being added to the mess hall as well as a new kitchen on the north side of the building.

A plot of ground also is being prepared for planting evergreen trees secured by the valley council through the state forestry extension division. About 150 of the trees will be planted in rows until next year when they will be transplanted to their permanent locations. Approximately 250 of the trees are to be planted at Pierce park and another 250 at the Menasha city park, according to Mr. Clark.

MAIL OUT COPIES OF ASSESSMENT ROLLS

Copies of the assessment rolls were mailed Thursday by John E. Hansen, chief, county clerk, to town, village and city assessors. The assessors use the books in making their annual assessments. When the work has been finished the books are turned over to the local clerk, who in turn sends them to the treasurer for collection.

FORTY HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS COME FOR SPEAKING CONTESTS

Preliminaries for Meet May 17 Held in Main Hall of College Thursday

Approximately forty high school students of Wisconsin will compete here for honors when Lawrence College holds its annual oratorical and extemporaneous speaking contest May 17.

A preliminary contest in both oratory and extemporaneous speech will be held in the Main Hall of the college Thursday afternoon. Five speakers from each division will be selected in the afternoon contest and these in turn will compete for high honors in the main contest which will be held Thursday night in the auditorium of the conservatory of music.

Scholarships are awarded to the winners of first, second, and third places and the winning speakers are also presented with gold, silver and bronze medals. The winning team is presented with a handsome shield which remains in the permanent possession of the school.

Dan Hopkinson, Milwaukee, a freshman at Lawrence and one of the school's outstanding debaters of the varsity debate squad, won first place in the extemporaneous contest last year. He represented Washington High School of Milwaukee. Harry Snyder, who graduated last year and is now teaching in Beirut, Syria, William Hlenoch of the class of 1926, who achieved a noteworthy record in debate during his stay at Lawrence, and William Verhage, Sheboygan, Ervin Marquardt, Wausau, and William Herman, members of this year's undefeated varsity debate squad, all are former winners in the annual forensic contest.

While the primary purpose of this contest is to encourage a high degree of excellence in forensic activity among the various high schools of Wisconsin, an effort is also made to show Lawrence to potential desirable students. The various contestants will be entertained by the different fraternities giving them an opportunity to come in contact with the social life of the campus.

MUST PREPAY POSTAGE TO GET ARTICLE RETURNED

Postage must be prepaid on parcels presented by addresses for return to original mailers, according to word received Monday by E. F. Wettengel, acting postmaster from the Federal Postal Department. Some business concerns send merchandise to prospective customers with the understanding that it may be returned, if after examination, it is not desired. Such parcels usually bear a pledge to pay the return postage if undeliverable and the recipients erroneously assume that under this pledge they may examine the parcels and return them without paying the return postage. As a matter of fact, according to Mr. Wettengel, this pledge applies only to parcels which are not delivered. When such parcels are to be returned to the sender, the full postage must be prepaid.

JUDGE TIRES OF COMPLAINTS OF DOVES IN GARDENS

County Judge Fred V. Heinemann said Thursday he wanted it distinctly known that he does not own all the pigeons in Appleton.

"I can generally tell when spring gardening starts because then my telephone begins to ring and I get complaints that 'my' doves are eating the seeds from gardens," said the judge. "Now, I have about 40 or 50 pigeons but I'm sure they can't be in all places at once. Also, I'm just as sure that other pigeons, as well as mine, like seeds from newly planted gardens."

The judge said he feeds his 40 or 50 pigeons twice a day with cracked corn—but that usually there are from 100 to 200 pigeons awaiting at meal time to "sponge" a feed. He explained to one woman, who complained to him Thursday, that if she was bothered with the doves, and she was absolutely certain they were his, then she had his permission to shoot the birds and make a meal of them.

TARDY TAX PAYERS FACE COURT ACTION

City Attorney Gets List After Bachman Has Checked It Over

The city attorney will be taking legal action soon against delinquent personal property tax payers, it was indicated Wednesday morning when Fred Bachman, city treasurer started his final canvass of the tax slips in his office. Names of persons liable for tax will be turned over to the city attorney in a few days and he will send out notices giving delinquents 10 days to settle up or answer legal proceedings. Many persons owing personal property taxes have moved from the city and there whereabouts are unknown. In such cases, the city is out the money. However, the address of most former residents was discovered by police officers when they made their collection trips. Where addresses are known, the city will make an effort to collect from the delinquent. Most of the tax is collected each year, the treasurer said.

Doyer and Dohn Tell Boys of County of Benefits to Be Gained

Fifteen boys have been accepted thus far and have sent in their applications for entrance to the Citizens Military Training camp this summer, which makes a total of 52.5 per cent of the quota, according to Raymond Dohr, chairman of the Outagamie board for Citizens Military camps. Outagamie county had the fewest men enrolled at the end of April with an average of 40 per cent of the quota filled. It is expected that by May 30 the quota will be filled, Mr. Dohr said.

On Friday afternoon Sergeant Joseph Doyer and Mr. Dohr will talk to boys of the Kaukauna high school about the camp. On Monday of next week the men will talk to students of the Bear Creek high school, according to Mr. Dohr.

ROPING MR. ROPER

The dispute between Senator Couzens and some other former stockholders of the Ford Company, and the United States government over their taxes by reason of the sale of such stock, has disclosed a rather unusual and certainly unfortunate situation concerning those who are willing to pay all the taxes required of them but don't know how and can't find out.

Back in 1919 when Couzens and his associates were willing to sell to Ford it became necessary for them to find out the value of their stock as of March 1, 1913 because the federal income tax law required them to pay a tax upon the difference between that value and the selling price. But how was that value to be ascertained, particularly where, as in the Ford Company, there had been no other sales of stock by which the market value could be judged? In this situation they made application to Daniel C. Roper, occupying the position of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and they asked him, upon all the facts submitted, to fix for them that dubious and uncertain figure; the value of their holdings as of March 1, 1913.

The United States Board of Tax Appeals has, since that time, decided that it was no part of Mr. Roper's business to fix that value and that therefore he had no power to do any such thing. Yet, apparently, Roper had one of those old-fashioned notions that one of the functions of government is to serve the people, and particularly when the people are doing their best to follow the laws fixed by that very government. Some of the stockholders whom Mr. Ford wanted to buy, out were unwilling to sell unless they could know before hand the amount of tax they would have to pay, not an unusual or unreasonable attitude to take. It seemed quite essential that the government ought to fix a value upon the stock so that these people might be able to figure out their taxes. Roper consented to do this and to that end put his experts to work in ascertaining and appraising the various elements that have to do with values. After the investigations were finished these experts fixed a value for the Ford stock as of March 1, 1913 and Roper after going over and analyzing their work approved the figure. The deal was consummated upon this basis and taxes were immediately paid by those who sold their stock.

Not long after the deal was completed, the Treasury Department which includes the Department of Internal Revenue, of which Roper was commissioner, not satisfied with the figure fixed, started proceedings to collect further and much larger taxes, proceedings that extended over three years of time ending in the decision that Roper had no legal right to fix the value of the stock but nevertheless that the value he placed upon it was in reality more advantageous to the government than the facts warranted.

It is quite likely the conclusion that Roper was without authority is based upon solid fact because our courts, our various commissions, and all commissioners or employees acting under them are bound by the laws as written by legislative bodies, in this particular instance the congress of the United States. So long as congress has not seen fit to give the authority to fix values before a sale is consummated and only afterwards, it must be so. The entire transaction discloses quite an impractical vision of legislation and one that needs a quick remedy.

Many people hold up the sales of property until they can learn the tax required of them through the transaction. They may even, and quite naturally, fix the selling price with the amount of tax in view. There ought to be a way to ascertain, and without three years' litigation, the amount of tax due the government by means of any transaction. The evidence was clear in the Couzens matter that the senator as well as the other stockholders were more than willing to pay to the government the amount the government originally demanded. There are many others in the innumerable transactions that are going on daily in the country who are in a similar position but, due to the way in which the law was drawn by congress, utterly unable to find out what the tax will be. Congress establishes certain agencies, including the Board of Tax Appeals, to fix taxes after a transaction is concluded. Would it not be a wise and a perfectly practical thing to give the same agencies the authority to fix the amount of tax or taxable income prior to the conclusion of the transaction so that people might definitely know where they stood and be permitted to avoid three years of litigation with the expense, annoyance and anxiety that that sort of a procedure always means?

In the decision of any matter concerning which minds might reasonably draw different conclusions, a certain amount of red-tape, so-called, cannot be avoided. But concerning these particular taxation matters the red-tape is needless, is not only costly to the people but to the government as well, and creates a condition of cloudy uncertainty through which the taxpayer should not be compelled to grope his way about.

PUTTING STEWART OUT

In his demand that Robert W. Stewart resign his position as Chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is running true to an earned reputation of honest dealings in business affairs.

There are some things concerning Stewart's relations to Sinclair that cannot be tolerated in any business that pretends to operate on the level. No one has yet explained fully, completely and satisfactorily, the Continental Trading Company of Canada. No one has yet given any sensible reason for its existence. It may very well be that the original sinister purpose was never known nor shared in by Mr. Stewart or at least to the same extent as it was understood by Sinclair. But Stewart's own testimony of the manner in which he handled the profits in bonds that were turned over to him indicates at least a suspicion that something was wrong and to be concealed. When Stewart admitted that nearly $800,000.00 in bonds were turned over to him, that since 1923 he did not cut the coupons upon them, that he did not treat them as his property, nor yet until the exposure, as the property of his company, an extraordinary condition is revealed, a condition that does not require mere gaunt suspicion to turn into an impropriety, but rather one that shows upon its face a clear wrong of some kind although the specific nature of the wrong may only be known to the four original participants.

Stewart's attitude before the Walsh committee, his contradictory statements, as well as his refusal to answer pertinent questions when the government needed the answers, discloses a moral obtuseness concerning the obligations of every citizen towards his government which puts him in a position where his further connection with his company as a directing head will hardly inure to its benefits.

Unable to convict the guilty participants because of mistaken jury sentiments, there will be some measure of satisfaction to the public to know that these men have been removed from positions which gave them the opportunity to do wrongs upon so large a scale.

GOOD BUSINESS YEARS

Everybody will recall the pessimistic business mood of last year. Business continued in considerable volume, but the favorite phrase for it was "profitless prosperity." It might have been supposed, by anyone but a chronic optimist, that everybody was losing money.

The returns are in now, and it is time for a show-down between the optimists and pessimists. The latter, as usual, are shown to have been away off. A list of over 700 leading industrial corporations for last year shows earnings 7.9 per cent below those of 1926, but a little above those of 1925. It should be added that 1926 was pronounced by Secretary Hoover the most prosperous year this country ever enjoyed, and was naturally hard to equal. Also that until that remarkable year, American business men had generally regarded 1925 as a very good year. If 1925 was a good year, then last year was a good year. And fundamental conditions indicate that this is likely to be a still better year.

Ed Howe used to say that the only thing an editor could get farther away from home than any transatlantic liner ever could.

AN OUTLINE OF HYGIENE

No. 30.—Immunity Is Not Resistance

A veterinary authority tells me that even goats sometimes have tuberculosis.

There is no such thing as absolute immunity against any known disease, for man.

If I have been vaccinated once in my life, no matter how long ago, I still have some immunity against smallpox, though it may not be enough, after many years, to protect me against an extraordinarily virulent or overwhelming infection.

We have some things yet to learn about immunity, but we are learning about it fast, and we would learn faster if there were sufficient human material to experiment on. In scientific medical research we are under a serious handicap, for it is not always possible or even safe to assume that a thing which may be true of animals is also true of man. Recently Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous arctic explorer, who has already contributed enormously to science, voluntarily subsisted on an exclusive meat diet for about three weeks, that nutrition experts might study the effects of such a diet on man. Instead of using our great race benefactors for such experimentation, we might well use the convicts in our overflowing prisons as subjects for human research and experimentation. This was proposed by the noted chemist and food expert, Dr. Albert P. S. S. who thinks such experimentation might settle some of the greatest dietary problems.

We know definitely that the character of the food has some influence on the immunity of animals against respiratory infections. Animals require an adequate supply of some mysterious substance called vitamin A in their food, otherwise they suffer from respiratory infections. We do not know, but it is probable that human beings require a similar ration of vitamin A to endow them with a fair degree of immunity against such infections. Vitamin A is provided in cod liver oil, butter, raw fresh milk, yolk of egg, and such green leaves as are palatable, as well as carrots, sweet potatoes, liver and sweetbreads. Prolonged heating or cooking destroys vitamin A, but brief heating or cooking does not. Ultraviolet rays of sunlight, the electric arc lamp or the mercury vapor quartz lamp, imparts to the body the essential influence of vitamin A, and is so recognized as a means for building up immunity against respiratory infections.

I cannot substantiate my belief with scientific evidence, but nevertheless I believe that once an individual has a high degree of immunity against any respiratory infection, it is no more likely that his immunity can be lowered or reduced suddenly by casual causes than is the immunity of a vaccinated person has against smallpox. All or nearly all the scientific evidence bearing on this aspect of immunity is negative, that is, it fails to support the theory that this that casual factor, say fatigue or low food, lowers immunity or renders one more susceptible to respiratory infection. In logic it is impossible to prove a negative, and by the same token the weight of negative evidence is always zero. However, Voliva has traveled around the world in quest of evidence to support his contention that the world is not a global body, and maybe some day the old fogey doctors who still believe in "lowered resistance" will snap out of it, too.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

12 Years Old

I am 12 years old and I am fat. My arms and legs are thin and so is my face but my hips are large. The other day I sent away for some bath salts. You put them in the bath and after a while you get them. My father says you can't get thin that way. (D. C.)

Answer—Your father is right, for once. The bath salts swindle reduces only your pocketbook. But do not feel lonely, Doris. I reckon there are thousands of grownups who are just as credulous as a normal 12 year old child. Haven't you a physician, an education instructor at school? She can tell you about the only safe way to reduce the hips—exercise.

Quadruple Trouble

For four or five years I have been humiliated with what seems to be a combination of skin troubles:

1. Acne, one doctor said but he was unwilling to do anything as he said it is hard to get rid of.
2. "Subcutaneous sebaceous acroton," another doctor said, and prescribed lanolin and ammoniac water, which didn't help a bit.
3. Flocks and droves of pimples that appear, leave, and come back just when I am beginning to rejoice.
4. Last, and not least, hairs turning under the skin after shaving, causing sore lumps. (G. R. C.)

Answer—1. Mention your age and your trouble (no clipping) and send a stamped envelope bearing your address. I will mail you general advice.

2. This is a humorous way of describing acne, blackheads or pimples.

3. A certain amount of pimples or acne is rather good for a normal boy or girl—tends to keep the young person from becoming vain.

4. The old myth, "growing hairs." Nothing of the sort happens. The sore lump is just an inflammation of the hair follicle, a frequent occurrence in simple acne.

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

WHEN A BOOK BECOMES A BOOK

A book does not really become a book until it finds the right reader. The author may have done all he can, the publisher may have expended on it all the book-making art he is capable of. Until the right reader finds the book it is only half finished. The reader closes the book that makes the thing indestructible.

De Stendhal, whose real name was Marie-Henri Beyle saw this over a century ago. Boni, Loverlight has recently republished his famous treatise, "On Love." This was first published in France in 1822. At the end of the first year the book had nearly 17 readers, at the end of 20 years less than 400. During the past hundred years it has become a classic and has slowly found many thousands of readers as edition has followed edition, but Stendhal did not live to see its success.

He was content however with his 17 and his 100 readers, at least he professed to be. In a preface he tells us a few readers, if they are the right ones, will make the book a book but that a million of the other kind will not do anything for the volume. He says it doesn't want more than a hundred readers as that is about all a writer makes a bid for readers; Stendhal laughingly lists the readers he does not want.

He does not want the readers he does not want are the bourgeois — "especially if they are bankers, manufacturers or respectable merchants, that is to say, people of eminently practical outlook." He explains: "People who have a weekly payroll of 2,000 francs do not waste their time in these ways; their minds are always bent on utility and facts. The dreamer is the man they would hate if they had time; they would gladly make him the butt of their simple humor. The industrial magnate is vaguely conscious of the fact that such a man places more value on a thought than on a bag of money."

He is equally scornful of the pedantic scholar and many a Ph. D. in our universities today would come under his ban: "I reject also the earnest young man who, during the same year in which the business man earns his 100,000 francs, has taught himself modern Greek, an accomplishment of which he is so proud that he is already contemplating taking up Arabic."

The social climber is another he does not want for readers: "I have some times surprised such women in a moment of naturalness and they were so amazed that on carefully considering the matter they could not honestly say they were not."

Q. Please send me formula for making aquarium cement, N. C. S.

A. Cement for use in aquariums is produced from litharge and glycerine. The former must be as finely powdered as possible, and the glycerine very condensed, of a syrupy consistency, and limpid. Mix the two ingredients into a semi-liquid paste, coat the places, or pour the tough mass into the respective cavity, and press into it the part to be cemented on. The surplus oozing out must be removed at once and the place cleaned, as the putty hardens very rapidly.

Q. Who was the man who invented the electric chair, and who was the first man executed? R. L.

A. The electric chair was devised by E. P. Davis, the State electrician of New York about 1888. The method of electrocuting criminals was first adopted by the State of New York.

The law making this mode of capital punishment obligatory, being passed June 4, 1888. The law became effective on the 1st of January, 1889. The first criminal to be executed by electricity was William Kemmler, on the 6th of August, 1890, at Auburn Prison. See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Hart's Island looks directly upon that section of Long Island that is studded with the estates of the rich. From Hart's Island you can see the rolling green lawn, the trees, the mansions and the drives of such swanky commuting points as Great Neck, or Sandy Point. Looking across on a warm Sunday afternoon, you can imagine the smartly dressed, weekenders in their colorful sport togs, you can see the cars spin up and on a quiet day you can hear the faint echo of an auto horn or a whistle.

There lies some of the somber mockery of contrast! Just behind Bellevue hospital, where cot is a sturdy little pier. In mid-morning and mid-afternoon a boat pulls out carrying a gruesome cargo, it is taking the bodies of the unknown and uncared-for dead to Hart's Island. For this quiet, somewhat brackish island has a desolate, sandy hill upon which are buried the unknown of the metropolis. This is the super-Potter's field of Manhattan.

At the Hart's Island there is an ever alert bell-buoy. Thereon is a bell of solemn tones which, night and day, sounds its dirge for the unfortunate who have escaped at last to a sandy hill, standing upon which you can see the green trees lean in the wind on the estates of the rich just across the water. Such last rites as are said for the paupers could be watched with a spy-glass by one standing upon the balcony of any one of the millionaire's mansions.

To Hart's Island come the bodies of men they are lying in the gutter. Scores of them are buried without so much as the record of a name. No one knows them, no one claims them, no one identifies them.

And so the records of the Island read: "John Doe—found dead in a case of 'Times Square.' On 'Baby Jane Doe' found abandoned in a doorway." Or "Jennie Roe, victim of alcoholism, found in Battery Park."

They come by many trails to the sand hill on Hart's Island. They come from the west and the middle west, the south, the north and the east, to die on a New York bench, or whisper their last words to a busy nurse of Bellevue. They come and go and live and die and nobody knows and nobody cares.

But they are rare; you may say! Not in the least. The little boat from Bellevue averages almost 20 a day, 140 a week, or more than 6,000 a year, 6,000 persons a year who are buried without the dignity of a grave marker. No, that isn't exactly accurate. They bury them 150 to the grave on Hart's Island, with a single headstone for the bunch. And there are not always that many names to a stone. Now and then a patient man or woman arrives on the sand hill and goes sorrowfully through the vast tiers, scanning the list of names and going away, shaking their heads sadly. A mother—a father—a sister, trying to get some trace of a missing son, father, husband or daughter.

That is a part of Manhattan you forget about unless you go to the pier back of Bellevue Hospital or pass Hart's Island and are reminded by the dirge-like bell that warns boats of destruction on the rocks.

A combination of this prefix with the syllable-ntu, a person.

Q. What is the width and average depth of the English Channel? H. J. Y.

PUPIL'S ABILITY DETERMINES WORK

Rural School Superintendents Approve Differentiated Lesson Assignments

Differentiated assignments designed to meet the individual abilities of students were approved by rural school superintendents and rural school supervising teachers of the Ninth district at a meeting in Green Bay Wednesday, A. C. Meating, Outagamie county superintendent, and Miss Nellie McDermott and Arthur L. Collar, Outagamie county supervising teachers, attended the gathering.

The purpose of the conference was to formulate a plan for dividing the work of preparing lesson plans in the office of county superintendents so as to avoid duplication of effort. In some instances, it was brought out, specific plans used in one county work are found to work out well, and these may be passed on to other counties to try.

Mr. Meating, in an address pointed out that the trouble with the level plan of lesson assignments was that pupils were not uniformly prepared to do the same work, some having greater ability and experience than others.

PROGRESSIVES PREPARE FOR CAMPAIGN IN FALL

Plans for the activities in the fall campaign will be made by the Ninth district LaFollette Progressive Republican organization at a meeting in the assembly room of the courthouse at Green Bay at 6:30 Friday evening, according to Samuel Sigman, district secretary. The meeting was called by Senator John E. Cashman, Denmark, chairman of the district, and invitations were sent to leading Progressives in the district by Mr. Sigman. Mr. Sigman, and several other Appleton Progressives expect to attend the meeting.

Mom, sweet:
You don't know it but you think like some modernistic artists paint their pictures—all solid blocks. Every thing is either right or wrong with you. And there's one thing about us girls of the moment that you don't grasp at all. We're regular emotion barometers. We can tell the way be- forehand what is on a fellow's mind. Nothing happened at the dance. Florence didn't let it. She had the situ- ation well in hand after the first dance with Pedro's friend. She ought to have some credit for not risking the opportunities he'd have in a sec- ond whirl to show her what he thought of us.

Pedro asked me not to call him Sen- or. Alvaro and I did feel as though I was addressing an ambassador, so I selected Pedro as his most attractive moniker.

We had a dance or two while Flo- rence and her flat tire sipped yellow tea. Don't ask me about those dances! There's no describing that man's mar- velous grace. The only thing that kept my feet out of the clouds where my head was floating around was Pe- dro's perfume. It was good enough but I couldn't get over a funny de- sire to sniff.

I know that anyone who isn't pro- vincial never sets standards for other people in such matters as the use of perfume, but I can't overcome a dis- tinct little shock whenever I get near Pedro.

Fancy Allan smelling like a flower! But then I don't know that it wouldn't be better than reeking of smoke-filled tweeds when you get used to it. I hope that liking Pedro's ways won't be a first step toward bad taste, because he's one fascinating hombre.

Devotedly,
MARYE.

Add egg well beaten. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt and add to first mixture. Add hot water and beat until batter is perfectly smooth. Add vanilla and pour into an oiled and floured shallow pan. Bake twenty-five minutes in a moderately hot oven. Cut in squares and serve warm with the following sauce:
STRAWBERRY SAUCE
Four tablespoons butter, 3-4 cup powdered sugar, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup crushed strawberries, 1-2 cup whipping cream. Cream butter and gradually beat in sugar which has been sifted. Beat until creamy. Beat in vanilla and strawberries. Fold in cream whipped until firm and serve at once.

FRIED RICE
Warm-over rice is excellent for luncheon if you add some bits of ham, a dash of onion, and pimento and fry a few minutes in very hot butter.

Spring is the time to repaint your pantry a gaudy color. Why not try a Chinese red on the shelves and cream walls, for a change.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

AGAIN the band struck up a tune that sounded fine. Then, pretty soon, the Tinymites jumped and rushed right out upon the ground. "We're going to dance, and run and play," yelled Clowny Tinymite. "Hur- ray!" The flowers were quite excited and they quickly gathered 'round. But, as they started on their lark, the sun went down and it grew dark. "Oh, my," said one small daisy, "it is much too dark to see." Then, from the air a wee voice said, "You want to dance? Well, go ahead. I'll see that you are given light. Just leave that up to me."

A lot of sparks the Tines spied. "Why, they are fireflies!" Scouty cried. And, as the flies lit up the spot the Tines danced in glee. The little flowers soon joined right in. The band kept up an awful din, but everybody seemed to be as happy as could be. All through the night they played and danced. The whole bunch laughed.

FATHER PLAYS BIG ROLE IN EYES OF SON

The hearing and singing of songs are an important part of every child's musical education. But these songs should be as carefully chosen as the children's shoes or luncheons.

Many so-called children's songs are childish neither in thought, vocabulary nor melody, says "Children, the Magazine for Parents." Mother Goose herself has suffered much at the hands of many musicians, but there are settings for her which are as singable as they are delightful for beginners. And there are many newer songs that all children should know. A child who never learns to sing Nedding's "Little Birdie," or of Mr. Duck who went to call on Mr. Turkey, has been deprived of a joyous part of his birthright.

Some songs lend themselves to sim- ple dramatization. This should always be rhythmic. Little Bo Peep gives added pleasure if she is impersonated by the singer.

It is possible to teach even a tiny baby to take pleasure in necessary self-denials if the positive features of the act are emphasized. That is, do not call his attention to the fact that he must not put pins into his mouth, but that he must give them to mother, and make him feel that it is fun to do so, that it is an achievement like wav- ing bye-bye or playing pat-a-cake, and quite as fit a subject for pride and rejoicing.

For many years in a little boy's life the father is his ideal. He wants to eat what father eats, do what father does. A child may learn to go off into a fit of temper every time any- thing goes wrong just because he sees father do it. Father must be careful not to talk about the food he likes and dislikes; he must learn perhaps to like such things as spinach and milk. If he feels like swearing or kicking the furnace when it won't work, let him take it out in shoveling coal.

Club Women Give Play And Dinner

A CLEVER one act play topped the program presented at the annual banquet of the Appleton Women's Club last night in the Crystal Room of the Conway hotel, where nearly a hundred and fifty clubwomen and their husbands gathered to commemorate the completion of another year's service by the club. The play, "How The Club Was Formed" was presented by the board of directors of the club, and combined snappy lines, excellent characterization, and sly satire. The plot dealt with the down-trodden women of Cherryville who, tired of staying at home and doing all the fun, decided to form a club. Mrs. Richard Gelschewitz, as Mrs. Jones, the domineering housewife who changed from housewife to self-elected president in two scenes, provoked many snorts from the husbands at the banquet, while Mrs. Joseph Kofend, Jr., as her ultra-refined friend, fresh from five weeks in Boston with the blondest hair, the tightest bodice and the biggest mutton chop sleeves in the club, received especial applause on her ringing appeal to women. "Who are you but idle butterflies—toss for man's idle moments—to keep his shirts mended, his socks darned, and save him the two dollars a week a hired girl would cost?" Mrs. Elmer Jennings as the lady with the ear trumpet and the restricted vocabulary, Mrs. Harry Leonard, as the minister's wife—a good woman given to quoting bible passages to the effect that "the first shall be the last and the last shall be the first," when she wasn't elected president, and Mrs. Lewis Sleeper as the woman who was so sure clubs for wives meant dirty soaps for husbands, all played their parts excellently. Mrs. Max Gores and Mrs. James Murray as the old fashioned type of kitchen-women were especially good. Mrs. John Engel, Jr., was especially commended by the officers for her efficiency, tact and energy as office secretary. In recognition of her work as treasurer, Mrs. E. C. Hilbert was presented with a twenty-five dollar gold piece. A huge bouquet was presented to the ex-president, Mrs. L. J. Marshall. "Eulogy and flowers—and I'm not dead yet," said Mrs. Marshall. Junior high school boys under the direction of Earl Baker, furnished music.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

Taking Out Partner's No Trump With A Bid of Three of A Major Suit. At a love score, the three-bid of a Major suit over partner's one No Trump is made to show great strength and to announce that the bidder wants to make a game-bid but is in doubt whether it should be three No Trumps or four of the suit in which he is bidding three. It is the bid of strength and indecision, and it puts the determination up to the partner who has started with one No Trump and who, with the information furnished by the three-bid, is in position to make the selection and who is sure to make the sound choice.

Three of a Major over partner's one No Trump does not show any specific holding in the Major, but it does show at least five cards, a possibility of six and great strength both in the Major and on the side. The hand must be powerful because the bid is a command to the partner who has started by bidding only one No Trump, to bid either four of the Major or three No Trumps. It is the one bid which calls for a game going bid from a partner who has shown his entire strength by his first bid. Take such a hand for example, as:

A "PECK" OF MEDICINE DID NO GOOD

But ALL-BRAN brought natural relief

Read what Kellogg's ALL-BRAN did for Mr. Hamilton—a chronic sufferer from constipation.

"I am 55 years old and truly believe I have taken a peck of medicine, costing a good many dollars, for constipation, and all I got was temporary relief. Now since I began taking your ALL-BRAN I have had a bowel movement (with a single exception, and that was my fault) every day. From a grateful user of your ALL-BRAN."

W. N. HAMILTON, Export, Penna.

Constipation causes headaches, blotched skins, sleeplessness, spots before the eyes. It is father of more than forty serious diseases.

Guard against it. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend Kellogg's because it is 100% bran. Because it is much more effective than part-bran products could possibly be.

A health cereal too! Serve with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Use in cooking. Recipes on every package. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"WEST POINT" AN EXCITING PICTURE FROM EVERY ANGLE
West Point—the very name suggests romance, glorious traditions and patriotism. All these are echoed in William Haines' new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle, in which, at Fischers Appleton theatre Monday, the audience follows his career as a cadet through the government's military academy.

It's a story of youth and romance—with the thrills of a great football struggle, the spectacle of parades and evolutions of Uncle Sam's future officers—and a delicate romance between Haines and Joan Crawford running through it.

Haines plays a "fresh" young man who comes to West Point to play football. The traditions of the corps mean nothing to him. He's conceited, selfish, wayward.

The remaking of the youth from this raw material into ideal timber for officership is strikingly shown in a dramatic and entertaining sequence. There are many comedy moments in his training—comedy moments of which Haines takes the fullest advantage; there are heart throbs as the cadet is put through the bitter experiences that must be his lot before he can learn the lesson of the corps; one has every sympathy with him even while realizing that he deserves his lesson and that it's all for his good.

The love theme is wonderfully carried out by Haines and Joan Crawford, who plays the heroine of the new story.

One of the outstanding characterizations is the work of William Bakewell as the timid young "Tex," adoring friend of the football hero, and Ralph Emerson and Neil Neely give clean-cut portrayals as student officers. Major Raymond G. Moser of the United States Army, who plays the role he plays in real life as instructing officer at West Point, handles his part cleverly.

Edward Sedgwick, who directed Haines in "Slide, Kelly, Slide," and "Spring Fling," directed the new picture from an original story by Raymond L. Schrock.

"VAMPING VENUS"

Scenes dazzling in their beauty; lightly-clad dancing maidens; Ethiopian statures, and glistening incense urns steaming in the sunlight; enormous classic pillars rising into the sky; gods and goddesses at play; all these and many more spectacular and impressive sights are found in First National's great special comedy "Vamping Venus," featuring Charlie Murray and Louise Fazenda which is showing at the Elito Theatre today, Saturday and Sunday.

Impressive sets were made and hundreds of extras used for the ancient Greece sequences in this picture, a story of a New York politician today who takes an imaginary trip to ancient Athens in the height of its glory.

While the picture is intended primarily for laughing purposes and serves those purposes well, it is also an artistic triumph for First National with scenes that fairly dazzle the eye. Charlie Murray demonstrates that he is one of the funniest comedians on the screen in this—his latest vehicle. As the ward heeler who is boss of his district and henpecked in his home, Murray makes the most of the comic situations of the story and with Miss

Fazenda's aid, keeps the audience in an uproar during the picture. "Vamping Venus" was directed by Eddie Cline, master of comedy situations and the cast includes such well-known players as Thelma Todd, Joe Bonomo, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Fred O'Beck, Big Boy Williams, Spec O'Donnell and many others.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SALLY FORD is left at the state orphanage when she is four by a woman who says she is the child's mother but who never returns. At 16 Sally is "farmer to servant." Sally forgets her ears when she meets DAVID NASH, handsome young student of scientific farming, who is working on the Carson farm for the summer.

PEARL, Clem's daughter, hates Sally because David plainly prefers Sally to her and leaps in to the defenseless orphan. David asks Sally to go for a walk with him so he can show her how lovely the farm is by moonlight. On a sudden impulse she tells him that Clem Carson has warned her to have nothing to do with David as he and Pearl are practically engaged. David stoutly denies this and see in Clem's remarks a scheme to win the Carson acres. As they talk quietly they are startled by Carson's voice.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X
David and Sally had been sitting at the end of the corn field, in plain sight of anyone who cared to spy upon them. When Clem Carson's harsh bellow startled them out of their innocent confidences David jumped to his feet, offering a hand to Sally, who was trembling so that she could scarcely stand.

"We're not in the corn, Mr. Carson," David called, his voice vibrating with indignation. "I'll have to ask you to apologize for what you said, sir. There's no harm in two young people watching the moon rise at 10 o'clock."

Carson came striding out of the corn. David, feet planted rather far apart, looked as if he were braced for attack and the farmer, after an involuntary shrinking toward the shelter of the corn, advanced again, an apologetic smile on his brown face.

"Reckon I spoke hasty," he conceded, "but Jim said he seen you two young-uns sneaking off into the corn and it got my dander up. I'm responsible to the orphanage for Sally and I don't aim to have her going back in disgrace. Better get back to the house, Sally and go to bed, seeing as how you've got to be up at half-past four in the morning. You stay back a minute, Dave. I want to have a little talk with you."

"I'm taking Sally to the house, Mr. Carson," David said grimly. "On the walk back to the house there was no opportunity for David to reassure the frightened, trembling girl, for Carson plowed doggedly along behind them, as they walked single file between the rows of corn. When they reached the kitchen, where Mrs. Carson was setting great pans of yeast bread to rise on the back of the range, Sally ran to the stairs, not pausing for a good-night.

Ten or 15 minutes later, while she was sitting on the edge of her cot-bed, she heard David's firm step on the back stairs and knew that he had cut short the farmer's "little talk" with him.

Reckless of consequences she slipped out of her door, which she had left ajar and crept along the dark hall to David's door.

He did not see her at first, for she was only a faint blur in the dark, but at her whispered "David!" he paused, his hands groping for hers.

"It's all right, honey," he whispered. "I told him pointblank if he sent you back to the Home I'd leave, too. And that will hold him, because he can't do without me at this busy season. He couldn't get another hand right now for love or money and he knows it. Go to sleep now and don't worry."

The next morning at breakfast it was plainly evident that David had said one or two other things to Clem Carson and that he in turn had passed them on to Pearl. For Pearl's eyes bore traces of tears shed during the night and the high color of anger burned in her plump cheeks. Carson's anger and chagrin at losing all his hopes of David as a son-in-law and of acquiring, through his marriage to Pearl, the neighboring farm for his daughter, expressed itself in heavy "joshing," each word tipped with venom.

"Well, well, how's our Sally this morning? What do you know about this, Ma?—our little 'Orphant Annie' is stepping out! Yes, sir, she ain't letting no grass grow under her feet! Caught herself a feller, she has!"

"Eat your breakfast, Clem and let Sally alone," Mrs. Carson commanded impatiently. "She's old enough to have a feller if she wants one."

Tears of gratitude to the woman she had thought so stern gushed into Sally's eyes, so that she could not see to butter the hot biscuit she had in her shaking hands.

"She's cut you out, Pearl, beat your time all hollow! And looking as meek and mild as a Jersey heifer all the time! I tell you, Ma, it takes these butter-mouthed little angels to put over the high-jinks!"

"I'm sure I wouldn't have looked at a hired man," Pearl cried angrily, tossing her head. "Sally's welcome to him. But I can't say I admire his taste."

Sally's eyes, drowned in tears, fluttered toward David.

"Don't you think you're going pretty far, Mr. Carson?" David asked abruptly.

"No offense, no offense," Carson protested, with a chuckle that he meant to sound conciliatory. "I'm a man that likes his joke, and it does strike me funny that a fine, upstanding college man like you, due to come into property some day, should cotton to a scared little rabbit of an orphan like Sally here."

"That'll do, Clem!" Mrs. Carson interrupted sharply. "Get ahead with your breakfast and clear out, all of you! Sally and me have got a bit day's work ahead of us. Pearl, I want you to drive to Capital City for some more Mason jars for me. I'm all out."

Later, when Sally was washing dishes, Pearl bounced into the kitchen, dressed for her trip to the city, her arms full of soiled white shoes, stockings and silk underwear.

Sally, taking the suds from the dishpan off her arms and hands, accepted the pile of garments dubiously, but resolute to get them clean, she turned to the closed door, she hastily made a bundle of the three new dresses and hid it under the cornshuck mattress of her bed. Maybe it would be stealing to take the dresses if she had to run away, but she couldn't hope to escape in the orphanage uniform.

Early Saturday afternoon Mrs. Carson announced that she had to go into the city to do some shopping. The farmer suggested that Pearl drive her in, since he himself was to be busy setting up the elder mill in a shack he had built at the foot of the lane, where it ran into the state highway.

"And you might as well take the Dodge and let Ma and Denny go in with you. They haven't seen a picture show for a month," Carson suggested.

The thought of seeing a movie overcame Sally's timidity. "Would there be room for me, Mrs. Carson? I could help you with your shopping, help carry things—"

"I don't see why not," Mrs. Carson answered. "I got a lot of trotting around to do and it's mighty hot—"

"Mama, if she goes, I won't go a step!" Pearl burst out, shrilly. "I won't have her tagging after us all afternoon, making eyes at every man that speaks to me!"

"Pearl, Pearl, I'm afraid you're spoiled rotten!" Mrs. Carson shook her head sadly. "I'll bring you a pair of Sally whirled from the dishpan, stooped swiftly and laid her lips for an instant upon Mrs. Carson's hand. Then, flushing vividly, she ran back to the kitchen sink, seized the big flour-sack dish towel and began to polish a glass with intense energy.

Although Mrs. Carson made no comment on Sally's shy caress, the girl felt that from that moment the farmer's wife was her friend, undeciphered but staunch.

Knowing that any day might prove to be her last on the farm, for Carson never let slip an opportunity to threaten her by innuendo with the disgrace of being sent back to the Home, Sally found a ray of comfort in the fact that Grandma Carson, probably because she felt sorry for Sally, constantly lectured as she was by the jealous, vicious-tongued Pearl, was slowly but surely completing the necessary alterations upon the other two dresses that Pearl had given her.

The vague-eyed, kindly little old woman finished the alterations on Saturday morning, and Sally sped to her garret room with them, there to try them on and gloat over them. Then, her eyes darting now and then to the closed door, she hastily made a bundle of the three new dresses and hid it under the cornshuck mattress of her bed. Embryo Psychologists Study Types In Hospital

"They're all your friends — they've come to visit you," Dr. J. H. Griffiths, psychology professor at Lawrence college told patients at Northern hospital, near Oshkosh, as he escorted them to the platform in the chapel of the institution for demonstration before his class in abnormal psychology. The red-trimmed blue eyes of the diminutive German octogenarian filled with tears. Then he shook his head. "I have seven little children," he said peering at the college girls and boys. "But these are not my children. They are dressed too nice." He sank trembling into a chair on the platform and began to recite a poem. The old man, who was a victim of a senile psychosis which is a disease common to the period after middle age, showed great confusion of ideas.

Oscar, a negro, who had invented a jack which was to solve the traffic problems of the world's highway, but which was stolen from him by an individual "fat" insanity. He felt for the whole America, said Oscar putting his black hand over his heart and was going to teach the whole world how to live.

A subnormal rather than an abnormal man of forty showed the greatest heartiness and optimism. "Mmmf," he said smiling benevolently upon the group of embryo psychologists before him, "when my mother sent me here she said they were going to give me a job. Heh. Give me a job sitting around. You wear your pants out doing that," he added, changing to an injured tone.

When the attendant charged Jake in, one might have almost thought he carried a wax dummy. Perfectly flexible, the twenty-eight year old man doesn't make the slightest voluntary movement. Any part of his body remains in any position one puts it in. Utterly apathetic, Jake must be fed with tubes through his nose.

Heaven, God and the angels figured prominently in the hallucinations of women patients. God was before Pauline, a manic-depressive in the former stage. But he couldn't watch out for her all the time. Yes, just a moment ago the nurse had tried to poison her drinking water. She even had to fight to get a handkerchief — here Pauline looked up with an apologetically proud expression for the big crowd — to exorcise it. Yes — Dr. Griffiths was her sixth sister, Catherine. But — she leaned over and hissed it to her audience — but "camouflaged." Before she left she had recognized half the psychology class as members of her family, insisted all the others introduce themselves to her and only expressed regrets that she could not kiss them one and all.

Charlie, a manic-depressive in the latter stage, a huge, powerful man shambled up to the platform, head bowed, eyes on the floor. He was afraid. Why? He did not know. But he was afraid someone was going to harm him.

Patients rarely admit the true reason for their presence in the asylum. It is always for "a little nervousness." Or they are "helping out." Or they are investigators. The wards through which the class was conducted are clean, sunny, and filled with flowers.

KITE FLYING AROUND WIRES IS DANGEROUS

Milwaukee (AP)—Copper kite strings and copper electric wires form a dangerous combination, the information bureau of the Wisconsin Public Utilities organization says.

If kites become entangled with wires transmitting electricity at high voltage, the children flying them may suffer electric shocks.

In some states children have been killed this year because the copper strings on their kites become entangled with the electric wires and also because they tried to rescue kites caught on wires.

The old fashioned kite with a wooden frame is not so dangerous as the new type of box arrangement, or the metal type of kite, the bureau says.

Beside the possibility of personal injury when kites are caught in wires, there is also the hazard of damage caused by cross circuiting wires which may cut off electric service to homes.

MOTHERS DAY MAIL TO BE DELIVERED SATURDAY

Due to the fact that Sunday is Mother's Day, city mail carriers at the Appleton postoffice will make a delivery Saturday afternoon. Instead of having the afternoon off, according to F. F. Wettengel, acting postmaster, Mr. Wettengel said the carriers will work so that mail intended for Mother's day will not be delayed until Monday. Carriers have Saturday afternoons off during the summer months unless, for some special reason, there is need for a delivery of mail on that afternoon.

YANKEES CONTINUE WIN STREAK AS BABE CLOUTS HOMER

Sensational Playing Of Champions, Macks Turns Race Into 2-Team Fight

Athletics Have Won 12 of Last 13 Games While Yanks Take 11 of 13

Sensational winning streaks by the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics threaten to turn the American League pennant struggle into a duel instead of a free-for-all.

The Athletics, after losing their first four games, have won 12 of their last 13. The Yankees have lost but two of their last 13.

George Herman Ruth propelled his seventy-seventh homer of the season into the left field bleachers at the Yankee stadium Thursday, scoring behind two teammates and giving the Yankees a 2 to 1 win over Cleveland. Willie Hudding pitched well until the Babe caught hold of one he liked.

George Fingras registered his fifth straight victory.

The Athletics hammered out an 11 to 1 verdict over the St. Louis Browns at Philadelphia. Joe Hausser hit his sixth home run of the season.

Bob Rothgill, led the Detroit Tigers to a 10-inning victory over the Senators at Washington, 6 to 5. Bob got three hits, two of them doubles, scored one run and drove in three others.

The Boston Red Sox returned to the league cellar by dropping a 3 to 2 battle to the Chicago White Sox.

Blankenship held Carrigan's crew to six hits and never was in trouble.

GIANTS TIGHTEN GRIP

The New York Giants tightened their hold on first place in the National league by downing Ray Kremer and the Pirates at Pittsburgh, 5 to 4.

The Giants shelled Kremer for nine hits and all their runs in 3 1/3 innings.

The St. Louis Cardinals advanced to third place by sinking the hapless Phillies, again, 5 to 4. An eighth-inning rally, netting three runs, turned the trick. Blades' batting featured the Cardinals' fourth straight victory.

The Cardinals announced last night that Bob O'Farrell, star catcher, had been traded to the Giants for George Harpner, veteran outfielder.

A wild tenth inning saw the Boston Braves beat the Reds at Cincinnati, 7 to 6. With the score tied at three-all, the Braves reached Carl Mays for four hits and four runs.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson couldn't get hit at Chicago because of rain but that did not prevent him from finishing Jess Petty, one of the league's best left-handers, $200 and suspending him indefinitely. The charge was breaking of training rules.

FOUR MEETS FEATURE OF BIG SPORT DAY AT RIPPON

Rippon—(P)—Oshkosh Normal and Lawrence college will oppose Rippon in the first of the varsity and freshman meets of the season here Saturday as preliminaries for a third meet the day when the Little Ten high school conference decides the championship.

Rippon college will also face Lawrence on the tennis courts in the opening match of an extensive schedule. Four inter-school contests are to be handled in less than ten hours and this is a record in Wisconsin sports.

Watertown, Mayville, Hartford, Rippon, Berlin, Beaver Dam, Portage, Waupun, Columbus and Horicon will bring 200 Little Ten prep athletes to compete for trophies offered by business men here.

Oshkosh normal will offer stiff opposition to Oshkosh's varsity which, with exception of the javelin, is sure to win. Rippon frosh have consistently beaten upper classmen and have a good chance of walking away with Viking yearlings Saturday.

MANY STERLING MOUND BATTLES THIS SPRING

Not in many a big league season have there been as many sterling pitching performances in the spring. Rookies such as big Ed Morris of the Red Sox and Ed Brandt of the Braves have turned in some flashy work but the spotlight has been chiefly monopolized by the veterans.

Sam Gray has won six of his first seven starts for the Browns. Uhlir, St. Louis, has won five out of six for Cleveland. Pennock has done the same thing for the Yankees while Grove and Walberg, the southpaw speed kings, are also the aces of the Athletics.

START APPLETON SWIMMING DRIVE

Annual Learn to Swim Campaign at Y. M. C. A. from May 14 to 26

Another opportunity to residents of Appleton to learn to swim is being offered by the Y. M. C. A. with its annual Learn to Swim campaign which will be held this year from May 14 to 26, inclusive, according to an announcement of A. P. Jensen, physical director of the association. Schools of city are cooperating in getting all boys who are non-swimmers enrolled and an effort also is being made to secure the cooperation of the parents to bring their sons to the pool.

Men's classes will be held on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 6:15 to 6 o'clock and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:15 to 8 o'clock. Time of boys' classes will be announced Monday by Mr. Jensen.

Enrollment cards for boys have been distributed about the schools and they must be returned by Saturday evening.

The Appleton association has one of the finest swimming pools in the state in spite of the fact that it was built 13 years ago, state statistics show. It is a standard pool, 20 by 60 feet, and contains 55,000 gallons of water. Dr. Henry F. Kallner, former national representative of the Y. M. C. A. swimming departments, reports that a list on file at national headquarters, New York, shows 540 pools in associations of the United States and Canada, with possibilities that some were not reported in time for the year book. There also are 18 under construction and a similar number were installed in 1927. All are the standard size and the present cost of pool equipment ranges from $25,000 to $30,000.

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—With another knockout added to his collection, Les Marriner, university of Illinois heavyweight and student, laid aside his gloves Friday to train for several harder opponents—semester examinations.

Displaying his now famous one-two punch, Marriner won his thirteenth knockout in 14 attempts Thursday night when he stopped the veteran Joe Burke of Detroit in two minutes and 22 seconds of fighting in the first round of their scheduled ten-round bout.

BOBBY O'FARRELL OF CARDS SOLD TO GIANTS

St. Louis—(P)—Catcher Bob O'Farrell of the St. Louis Cardinals has been traded to the New York Giants for George W. Harper, 36-year-old outfielder, it was announced here Friday by Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals.

O'Farrell, formerly of the Chicago Cubs, managed the Cards last year.

In Favor of Much Work Jimmy Ring, St. Louis Cards' hurler, likes plenty of work. And Manager McKechnie is going to give it to him this season because he knows Ring is most effective when working steadily.

BREWERS ADVANCE CLOSER TO FIRST

Only Three Games Now Separate Five Teams in A. A. Race

Chicago—(P)—Only three games were between first and fifth place teams in the American Association pennant race Friday.

The race tightened up Thursday when the two leaders, St. Paul and Kansas City, first and second place occupants, respectively, lost their contests, while Indianapolis, Milwaukee and Minneapolis won. The Indians were in fifth place, while the Brewers and Millers were tied for third and fourth positions. St. Paul's average was .667 while that of Minneapolis and Milwaukee was .556.

With Rawlings leading their attack with a homer and three singles, which drove in five runs, the Toledo Mudniggers defeated St. Paul 13 to 7.

THREE OUT OF FOUR

Milwaukee made it three out of four over Louisville by defeating the Colonels, 4 to 0. Koob held the Brewers to four hits, while his mates collected six, but Milwaukee bunched two singles and a sacrifice in the seventh to beat him.

Minneapolis swept the four-game series with Columbus by taking Thursday's game, 4 to 1.

Kansas City outlived Indianapolis but lost, 4 to 1.

Predict Quarrel Of Giant Stockholders To Rock Game

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

Predictors are being panned around in New York that baseball will be rocked to its very foundations if the quarrel among the stockholders of the Giants gets into court.

The characteristic cynicism of the New Yorker that every business is a racket and the honor and honesty "screw" has been augmented in this case by the threat of the deposed treasurer of the club to expose the president.

Judge Francis X. McQuade was relieved of a $18,000 a year job as treasurer of the Giants by an act which he called the double-cross Charles Stoenham, president of the club and John McGraw, vice president and field manager of the team.

McQuade threatens appropriate court action and an attending exposure of the relations between the New York and Boston clubs and the methods of Stoenham and McGraw in the management of the team.

Threats of exposures, in baseball, boxing and racing particularly, always come as appetizing food to that part of the public which has its suspicions about the honor and honesty of professional sport and it must be admitted that some things have happened to justify the public in being willing to think and expect more anything.

If Judge McQuade does go to court and does do some exposing it is not likely that baseball will be shaken off its foundations for reasons other than that baseball is a sturdy animal that has kept its feet under much more devastating shakings.

It would be interesting to those in the province who have been crying about syndicate baseball if it should be shown that the Giants and the Braves were brothers, but we imagine that the Giants and the Braves would go on playing baseball and the customers would keep on playing.

Postscript—It seems content to have Rogers Hornsby with the Braves bringing as he does better ball play.

NAVY MAY HAVE CREW IN 1928 OLYMPIC RACE

The Army and Navy both may take part in the Olympic battle of Amsterdam this summer.

Under old Dick Glendon the midshipmen are developing a crew that will give Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Washington, California or any other college eight an argument for the right to represent the United States in the Olympic championship regatta.

Annapolis gained this distinction in 1920 and won Yale 6 to 8 the same year in 1924. It will be interesting to see whether either can repeat.

SECTIONAL GAMES GIVE FIRST LINE ON REAL STRENGTH

Power in National Well Distributed at Present; East Teams Rule American

No real line on the strength of the candidates for the major league pennants can be obtained until the first sectional battles have been decided. With no Giants and the Robins showing unexpected strength, the power in the National League is fairly well distributed, but the American league strength is largely confined to the cast even if the Indians and the Browns are running against the figures.

The Giants should be able to hold their own in the first skirmishes with the strong westerners, but it is doubtful that the Robins can maintain their fast early season pace against the Pirates, Cubs, Cardis, Is and Reds.

The Indians and the Browns also will find heavier going against the Yankees, Athletics and Senators.

GRIEF AND GLEE

After another week of campaigning the situation around the two circuits seems to be:

Cubs—O'Farrell fractured thumb. Holm operation on shoulder. Douthitt and Rottger doing the saving act.

Browns—Gray and Kress playing heroes. Plenty of hustle and spirit of nothing to lose.

Cubs—O'Farrell hitting .204. Dumb infield work. Root total loss.

White Sox—Lyons, Thomas and Blankenship not winning.

Yankees—Moore and Hoyt out of shape.

Athletics—Fine pitching by Grove and Walberg and timely smacking by Cobb and Speaker. With Simmons out indefinitely Bing Miller and Speaker saving the team.

Indians—Fine substitutes to make necessary shifts. Uhle, Schaute and Hudlin and Langford, an outfielder with an arm like a 16-in. gun.

Connie Mack certainly has no goofy traits in his record but the boys thought he was getting a bit balmy last winter when he put out dough to get Bing Miller and Tris Speaker to assist Tris Cobb in making the oldest and slowest set of outfielders in captivity.

But old Connie is having his last laugh and the boys are handing it to him for a lot of smart foresight or luck. If you will let it that way.

Simmons has been kept out all season and no one knows when he will be able to play. With a player of such ability unable to work it does not take much guessing to figure the plight of the A's if old Connie Mack did not have Miller and Speaker around.

TON OF HEAVYWEIGHTS ON BENEFIT MITT CARD

New York—(P)—A ton or so of heavyweights battle at Madison Square garden Friday night in "Ton of Heavyweights" boxing show for the benefit of the Bronx hospital fund.

Heading the card of five bouts is a ten-round affair between Phil Scott of England, and Roberto Roberti of Italy. Roberti has been unbeaten in 17 starts in this country. Scott ruled a slight favorite.

Other ten rounders will bring together Arthur De Kuli, New York, and Pierre Charles, Belgium.

Rudi Wagner, German, and Big Boy Peterson, New Orleans.

Johnny Grosso and George LaRocco.

Bill Daring and Jack Klais of Harlem.

Predict Quarrel Of Giant Stockholders To Rock Game

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

Predictors are being panned around in New York that baseball will be rocked to its very foundations if the quarrel among the stockholders of the Giants gets into court.

The characteristic cynicism of the New Yorker that every business is a racket and the honor and honesty "screw" has been augmented in this case by the threat of the deposed treasurer of the club to expose the president.

Judge Francis X. McQuade was relieved of a $18,000 a year job as treasurer of the Giants by an act which he called the double-cross Charles Stoenham, president of the club and John McGraw, vice president and field manager of the team.

McQuade threatens appropriate court action and an attending exposure of the relations between the New York and Boston clubs and the methods of Stoenham and McGraw in the management of the team.

Threats of exposures, in baseball, boxing and racing particularly, always come as appetizing food to that part of the public which has its suspicions about the honor and honesty of professional sport and it must be admitted that some things have happened to justify the public in being willing to think and expect more anything.

If Judge McQuade does go to court and does do some exposing it is not likely that baseball will be shaken off its foundations for reasons other than that baseball is a sturdy animal that has kept its feet under much more devastating shakings.

It would be interesting to those in the province who have been crying about syndicate baseball if it should be shown that the Giants and the Braves were brothers, but we imagine that the Giants and the Braves would go on playing baseball and the customers would keep on playing.

Postscript—It seems content to have Rogers Hornsby with the Braves bringing as he does better ball play.

Appleton Track Athletes In Three Contests With Hard Rivals Over Weekend

Appleton Track Athletes In Three Contests With Hard Rivals Over Weekend

Orange Host to Manitowoc, Lawrence Varsity Invades Beloit; Frosh at Ripon

Three Appleton track and field squads, all slight favorites for victory, face their hardest tests of the season to date Saturday, when the Lawrence college varsity, the Viking frosh and Appleton high meet ancient rivals in dual competition. The strong college varsity is thought to have the best chance of victory in its meet with Beloit college at Beloit, classed as its hardest test because of the fact that a weak Oshkosh normal team has been the only other Blue foe this year outside of the Hamline relays where the two Viking relay teams made great records.

Saturday morning the only meet held in Appleton takes place at Whitfield field when Appleton and Manitowoc, the two leading contenders for the 1928 Valley conference title, clash.

WEEKLY AIR SERVICE TO CHICAGO WILL BE INAUGURATED MAY 16

North American Company
Plans to Increase Schedule
When Ports Are Finished

Beginning next Wednesday morning, the North American Airways company of this city intends to run their Stinson monoplane, the "Fride of Appleton," to Chicago, and return each week, according to an announcement by Karl M. Haugen, president and manager of the company.

The airplane will leave the George A. Whiting airport each Wednesday morning at 7:45, arriving at Milwaukee at 8:45 and at the Municipal airport, Chicago, an hour later. Returning, the ship leaves Chicago at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, Milwaukee at 6 and arrives at 7 o'clock.

The schedule of fares, as announced by the company, will be $20 to Milwaukee and return or $12.50 for one way and $35 to Chicago and return or $20 for one way.

Mr. Haugen points out that the Chicago municipal airport is, but a short distance from the "Loop" and that patrons of the line will be able to spend a complete shopping or business day in the central metropolis without the necessity of being away from home over night. Connections also may be made at Chicago, enabling passengers to fly to cities in all parts of the United States should they care to continue their trip by air.

While only weekly service will be inaugurated at the start, it is not probable that this will be increased to daily service as soon as airports in other points along the company's proposed route to Menominee, Mich., are completed.

SOLDIER OF FORTUNE MAY LEAD ALBANIANS

Former Commander-in-chief of Russian White Army,
Made a Private

Prague, Czechoslovakia — (AP) — Major-General Gajda, once commander-in-chief of the Russian White Forces on the eastern Siberian front and lately deputy chief of staff of the Czechoslovak army, has been degraded by a military court to the rank of a common soldier.

Behind this announcement is a story of romance, intrigue, treachery and daring seen in military annals by soldiers of fortune.

Born in a little Moravian town, Gajda, whose real name is Rudolf Geidel, began life as a druggist's boy. When the world war came he enlisted in the field hospital service of the Austro-Hungarian army. Later he deserted in Montenegro and joined the enemy, representing himself as a Captain. He next appeared as an army surgeon in Russia, where he married the daughter of Admiral Kolchak, head of the anti-Bolshevik forces. He later joined the Czechoslovak legionary troops as a self-appointed "general" and fought the Bolsheviks on the eastern Siberian front.

In September, 1918, scarcely 28, Gajda became commander-in-chief on the eastern Russian front. But he quarreled with his father-in-law, and is alleged to have "sold" the latter to the Bolsheviks, who shot the admiral for opposing the Red forces. After an abortive attempt at a coup d'etat at Vladivostok, Gajda was put on a ship and sent to Europe. Arriving in Prague, he determined to play a big role in Czechoslovakia.

He became military commander of a Slovakian garrison and in 1925 was made deputy chief of staff of the Czechoslovak army. Believing he could imitate Napoleon's career, he surrounded himself with politicians and planned a military coup d'etat in his own country. Just about that time the Czech government learned that Gajda had "sold" himself to the Soviet authorities. He is said to have given the Bolsheviks secret Czech military plans and to have offered his services to the Red army. Faced with court-martial, he resigned from the Czechoslovak army and created a fascismo force of which he made himself the head. At a fascist meeting communists attacked him and he saved himself only by flight.

Meanwhile the sentence of degradation from the rank of general was pronounced by a military court and confirmed by the appellate court.

He handed his uniform to a servant, with instructions to place it in naphthalin until he should require it again.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of these digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have indigestion, the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of bark, herbs and roots—nature's own medicine for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

LIMIT PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTORS

Madison—(AP)—A state license to practice chiropractic does not authorize its holder to perform a treatment for removing diseased tonsils by a process in which an electric needle is inserted in the tonsil, the attorney general advises Theodore A. Waller, district attorney at Pierceco.

The law provides that no person shall practice medicine or surgery without a license from the state board of medical examiners. A special rule allows chiropractors to practice, but would not cover performance of such operation as removal of tonsils by the process in question.

The legal department has told Mr. Waller that there is no need for him to hesitate in commencing prosecution against persons concerning whom the question was raised.

While here the visitors will make a tour into the country and visit several local factories. They will arrive on the morning of August 24 and leave that night.

NO RELIEF IN SIGHT FOR RENT SITUATION

Sixty building permits for new residences in Appleton were issued since the first of the year according to the records of John N. Wetland, city building inspector. These new homes have made little change in the rent situation here according to real estate men. They claim there still is a shortage of medium priced, homes. Young married couples who have been living with relatives are building the new homes, according to the realtors, and for that reason no change is noticed in the number of homes for rent.

RAILROAD CONDUCTS EDUCATIONAL TOUR

The Chicago and Northwestern railroad will conduct an educational and historical tour to Madison on Saturday, May 19, according to W. B. Basing freight agent at the local freight depot. The train will leave Green Bay at 6:30 and Appleton at 7:30 in the morning. It is expected that approximately 300 Appleton people will take advantage of the excursion.

AS KAUKAUNA OPENS
HOME BALL SEASONLawe Throws Out First Ball for Game With Kimberly on Sunday

Kaukauna—When Kaukauna opens its home baseball season on Sunday afternoon at the Kaukauna ball park two undefeated teams will clash. Kimberly-Little Chute, the invaders, won a one-sided victory over Green Bay in the opener a week ago and the Kaws set back Fond du Lac 4 to 2. All of the usual opening festivities will be held with John D. Lawe, local pioneer, throwing out the first ball. He is one of the staunchest supporters of local baseball teams. Previous to the game the Kaukauna Moose band will parade the streets and then march to the ball park where it will play during the game. Abbott is slated to do the mound work again and Manager Les Smith is confident he can come through in the second game if his mates give him the same fine support he had at Fond du Lac. Abbott allowed but 8 hits and struck out 10 in the first game. C. P. Pagan who rates as a heavy stick man as well as a fairly good pitcher. With airtight support it should be a great pitching duel between these two men. Wenzel again will catch for the Kaws. The diamond will be the Electric City of offense a week ago. Grub will catch for the Hollanders.

Little Chute will invade the city at least 100 strong and equally as many will be at the park from Kimberly. The grand stands and bleachers are being repaired this week and will be in fine condition for the game. Work on the diamond was finished earlier in the week.

APPLETON WINDS UP
FOOTBALL SCHEDULENeighbor Cities Engaged in Homecoming Tussle of Seven Game Season

Kaukauna—Olin G. Dryer, manager of the Kaukauna Athletic association, announced the 1923 high school football schedule Thursday. Seven games will be played next fall and five of them with Northwestern Wisconsin interscholastic conference teams. Appleton comes to Kaukauna to end the Orange and Black season on Nov. 10. This will be the homecoming game for the local school. New teams on the schedule are Sturgeon Bay which replaces Menasha, and Lawrence College which replaces Oshkosh. Each year it becomes more difficult to schedule games with the bigger schools in this section of the state and as a result the college yearlings had to be signed. The season opens on Sept. 23 and closes with the Appleton game on Nov. 10. Four of the games will be played on the home field.

The schedule:
Sept. 23—Oconto at Kaukauna.
Oct. 6—Lawrence Frosh at Kaukauna.
Oct. 13—Sturgeon Bay at Sturgeon Bay.
Oct. 20—Neenah at Neenah.
Oct. 27—Two Rivers at Two Rivers.
Nov. 3—Shawano at Kaukauna.
Nov. 10—Appleton at Kaukauna.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS
SELECT ANNUAL PLAY

Kaukauna—The senior class of Kaukauna High school has chosen "The Whole Town's Talking" for its class play which will be presented in the high school auditorium on Friday evening, May 25. It is a comedy in three acts by Anita Loos and John Emerson and will be directed by Miss Clara Wagner of the high school dramatics department. Rehearsals have been started.

"Many of the students taking part have had previous stage experience so that it will not be an amateurish production," Olin G. Dryer, school principal said Thursday.

Lloyd Derus and Joseph Bayoregon, co-leads in the play, have entertained Kaukauna audiences in former performances and the latter is particularly remembered for his work in "Safety First" and "The Russian Harem."

Miss Wagner is planning to present a new type of scenery which will add much to the effectiveness of the set. This work will be done by the public speaking class.

SCOUTS AND RANGERS
HELP BEAUTIFY CITY

Kaukauna—Members of the boy scout and Junior Forest Ranger organizations are planting flowers and shrubbery. The boys started their work on Main-ave between the power canal and Renn's coal yard. A screen of flowers will be grown which will shut off eyesore in the background, the runs of two former factories.

On Saturday the boys plan on hiking to the west limits of the city where U. S. highway 41 enters. The grounds there will be leveled off and shrubbery planted. The boys are planning on working the entire day and will carry their lunch with them. They will eat at the boy scout cabin only a short distance away. H. C. Ransley, scoutmaster of troop No. 20, is in charge of the boys.

Eighteen mothers, who have 249 children between them, were the first passengers in a charabanc which has been presented to the Salvation Army for use in social work in London.

Comrades Gone, Rhoads Tells Of War Against Confederacy

BY W. F. WINSEY

Medina—Sol Rhoads, 56 years of age, the subject of this sketch, is one of the three survivors of Company I, 32nd Wisconsin, and is the oldest pioneer of the town of Dale and perhaps of Outagamie-co. The other survivors of Company I, which originated in Outagamie-co, are Francis J. Pavill, Ogdensburg, Waupaca-co, and Irving W. Elliott, Algoma, Kewaunee-co. Mr. Rhoads is the oldest of the three.

"Do you know this man?" I asked Sol Rhoads in 1923, pointing to Lawrence Lenten, Dale, who accompanied me to the Rhoads home.

"I should say I do," was the convincing reply. "I bunked with him three years during the Civil war."

Mr. Lenten and Mr. Rhoads at the time were the only two surviving veterans of the Civil war who enlisted in Dale and the two oldest living pioneers of the township of Dale.

They were both hale and hearty then but since his comrade has left, Rhoads is the last living veteran in the town of Dale.

Although Mr. Rhoads has been seasoned by five more summers than when I saw him in 1923, he is not as hardy as he was then, nor as spry and his step is measured with great care. But his mind and his eye are as clear as when he was fighting on the battle field and his patriotism is just as aggressive as then. Even his appreciation of a joke has not been blunted by the flight of the past five years.

Rhoads and Lenten were pals when the greater part of their lives was before them. Having tried each other out in success and adversity, they were still pals at the time they were temporarily separated by the limitations of nature. And why not? They enlisted together in the same company, fought shoulder to shoulder in defense of their homes and country, were discharged at the same time and place, and returned together to the same home development so abruptly interrupted.

Mr. Rhoads was a carpenter and a railroad bridge builder as well as a tiller of the soil. He was born in Onondago-co, New York, in 1832, near the Erie Canal. He moved from the place of his birth with his grand parents in 1836 to Medina-co, Ohio, then a wilderness. In 1854, the party again pulled up stakes and started for Outagamie-co to which Hiram Rhoads had blazed a trail in 1851. The party took a boat at Cleveland for Toledo and from there to Toledo to Chicago. From Chicago, they traveled by two horse-drawn wagons loaded with people and household goods, and a carriage assigned to the grand parents direct to Sun Prairie, Walworth-co, where relatives had settled. The last lap of the journey took the new comers across the Fox river at Oshkosh on a floating bridge, and to the farm of Hiram Rhoads, their destination, in the town of Dale.

Until he reached the age of 23 years Mr. Rhoads lived with relatives in what is now the village of Medina, on the farm now occupied by Samuel Ray. At that age, his relatives gave him 60 acres of the farm. The only building in Medina at the time of the arrival of young Rhoads was a tavern run by Captain Young. Cornelius Knitz had built and was operating a saw mill not far from the tavern.

Young Rhoads cleared ten acres the first winter after the farm was given to him, but he worked the farm only three years when his farming activities were broken by the Civil war.

In front of Captain Young's tavern, twenty of the stalwart settlers of the town of Dale, presented themselves, offered their services to their country, joined hands and were sworn into the service for the term of the war. Sol

VETERAN

Solomon Rhoads is one of the three survivors of the Thirty-Second Wisconsin regiment of the Civil war.

Rhoads was in this little group and is the only one left to tell the story. He says this little group was the nucleus of Company F but later it was transferred to Company I, 32 Wisconsin. George R. Wood, Appleton, was captain of the Company I, William Young, Medina, first lieutenant, George Quilby, second lieutenant. The 32nd was a unit in Sherman's army. It was in the siege of Atlanta, the siege of Savannah and in every other struggle of the march to the sea.

STUDENTS COMPETE IN COMMERCIAL WORK

Nearly 400 of Them Expected to Vie for Honors at White-water Saturday

White-water—(AP)—Nearly 400 high school students from over 100 different high schools will participate Saturday in the Tenth annual commercial contest here. The competition will be held under auspices of the State Teachers' college.

Contests in typing, shorthand, book-keeping, rapid calculation, and penmanship will be held. Only two students from each school may enter any one contest.

Scoring will be under the point system. First place in any event will count on points, second place nine down to one point for tenth place.

The school which scores the largest number of points in each contest will receive a loving cup with the name of the point winner inscribed upon it. Cups may be held by winning schools until the contest next year. When a school wins a cup two years in succession, the cup becomes the permanent property of the school.

The purpose of the contest is to stimulate greater interest in commercial work and to act as an incentive toward perfecting the quality of secondary school work.

LITTLE JOE

CHANCES ARE THE BIGGEST FISH IS ALL SET TO GET AWAY AGAIN THIS SUMMER.

Contestants for tomorrow's competition were picked on April 21 in a number of district contests held throughout the state. Nearly every high school in the state was represented in the preliminaries.

Accuracy is to be emphasized in grading the work done. In the typing contest one error will mean the subtraction of ten words. Similar penalties will be imposed in the other events.

Results of the contest are to be announced Sunday over WTMJ, the radio station of the Milwaukee Journal. This arrangement allows more time to be spent in grading the papers. Instead of a hurried announcement before the contestants leave for home.

GROWERS AND-BUYERS BENEFIT WHEN FRUIT IS PROPERLY GRADED

Berry Growers Will No Longer Be Forced to "Peddle" Fruit in Competition

Formation of the New London Berry Growers' association for the purpose of cooperatively marketing their product, is the result of the realization by the growers that direct marketing results in ruinous competition and excessive cost of distribution, according to R. A. Amundson, county agricultural agent.

The organization of berry growers of Outagamie and Waupaca counties followed several meetings held in New London. Officers for the organization and by laws were adopted at a meeting Wednesday night.

New London has become a center of berry growers because the soil and drainage in the district and easy access to markets makes it ideal for the cultivation of strawberries, raspberries and black berries, according to Mr. Amundson.

Growers soon came to realize the ineffectiveness of "peddling" their product to cities in the Fox river valley, the county agent said, and agitation was started for the organization. The first meeting was called by Mr. Amundson and was held at New London last February. Later, H. U. Ullsperger, manager of the Door County

Fruit Growers' union, met with the growers, and discussed a permanent organization. Approximately 75 percent of the berries grown in Outagamie and Waupaca counties will be marketed through the New London organization, it is estimated. Practically all big growers are members.

Association berries will be graded and labeled with the association name and grade. Careful inspection will be made of marketable berries at a distribution center to be maintained at New London. It will be one of the aims of the organization to standardize the quality of all berries and assure the buyer of getting the grade of berries he is paying for, Mr. Amundson said.

OLD SCHOONER REFUSES TO BE FILM VICTIM

Portland, England—57—Amy is tough. She's so tough she won't even burn. Old sailors think Amy's a witch. Three times the naval chaps have tried to destroy Amy—an old three-masted schooner—to provide a fitting and thrilling finish for an official moving picture. And three times Amy has positively refused to die, even for the movie director.

The blowing up of the aged schooner is necessary for completion of the film which tells the gallant story of the British "Q" boats exploits in the fight against German submarines.

Tugs, a destroyer and a submarine have thrice conveyed Amy out into the channel and pointed out her grave.

They loaded her up with high explosive, but each time the electric connection declined to function. Then they poured oil all over Amy's decks and masts, and touched her off. But the fire went out and they towed Amy back to her dock.

Book Of Knowledge

Parrots-Their Kin

In the Australasian and Polynesian region of Australia are found the charming Lorries and Loriquets, a family of gentle, handsome and amusing parrots, favorites in many homes. Swainson's Loriquet, pictured above, measures a foot, including his five-inch tail. The Swainson beauty is the handsomest of all Australia's great parrot group.

Cockatoos are fantastic birds, with distinctive crests. Here the artist has pictured a Leadbeater's Cockatoo.

Here is the Bare-eyed Cockatoo, showing unusual resemblance to the owls, of which parrots are kin.

In South America we find the Macaws, showiest of all the parrots. In general they are large, but their tails give them a suggestion of prodigious size. The Blue-and-Yellow Macaw, shown here, is the commonest. All Macaws are great choppers of nuts. Tough palm nuts which man cannot penetrate without tools this bird soon reduces to a pulp.

Social Worker Able To Keep Families Together

So many specific instances of the need for a social case worker in Appleton can be received by members of civic organizations advocating employment of a trained worker, they say, that a whole book might be written on the subject.

The average citizen doesn't realize the conditions which can exist in a city as large as Appleton, one member said. Only a close contact with people will bring sharply into relief the very apparent need for a social case worker.

In one instance, cited by a member of a local welfare organization, a motherless family was found to be living in conditions which seemed to be unreal, because they were so awful. The father, without his wife on Sydney M. Shannon, 1224 E. North-st., Friday morning was appointed clerk of courts for Outagamie-co to succeed his father, H. A. Shannon, resigned Thursday. The appointment was made by Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner.

Sydney Shannon was born in Appleton and lived here all his life. He attended first ward grade school and Appleton high school. He served six years as deputy clerk of courts under his father.

The appointment of the younger Mr. Shannon to succeed his father will leave a vacancy in the office of deputy clerk. This office will be filled by appointment by the new clerk after he goes into office on June 1.

Courthouse house officials said Friday the resignation of Mr. Shannon was a complete surprise as no one knew he was contemplating the move.

"For some months past my work has been growing more and more burdensome until I finally decided to resign," Mr. Shannon said Friday. "I am tired out and want to take a long rest and do lots of fishing. The past few warm days got under my skin and made me resolve to resign at once. I have no definite plans for the future and the only thing I can say at this time is that I expect to take a long vacation. After that I don't know."

The elder Mr. Shannon was elected clerk of courts in 1916 and took office on Jan. 1, 1927. Mr. Shannon served the first ward as supervisor for 13 years from 1903.

Some courthouse officials said Mr. Shannon is the first county officer to resign in the history of the county.

New Kitchens for Old With Du Pont Fabrikoid

The white enameled kitchen of today, while immaculate, often is lacking in color. Now you can make it bright and gay with Du Pont Fabrikoid—a flexible fabric that is waterproof, easy to clean and durable. It can be washed and scrubbed repeatedly without injury.

Fabrikoid is suitable for window draperies, table runners, ice box throws and closet and cupboard shelves. It comes in the same rich colors as Duco and will not peel or discolor. Instead of the patterns being printed, the designs are permanently embossed in the materials. They cannot be removed by washing. It costs only a trifling sum to transform your kitchen and make it the prettiest room in the house. Be sure to see Du Pont Fabrikoid the next time you are in the Store.

The cedar chest is not a safe place for your fur coat and surely it cannot hang in a closet all summer.
